

Stewardship of the Mission

Trinity Schools operates with a single budget for the nonprofit corporation. With input from local heads of schools and executive directors, the president presents to the board of trustees a budget incorporating all of the operating expenses of the three schools, the expenses of the central office, and costs related to furthering the national work of Trinity Schools.

The work of the central office involves curriculum development, teacher training, branding and messaging, and other similar functions that are held in common by all Trinity Schools as well as the schools' national efforts at institutional advancement. Moreover, a wide variety of practical financial matters such as payroll, insurance negotiations, and reimbursements is handled centrally in support of the schools.

In order to support a project or need at a local campus, Trinity Schools offers a wide range of ways in which donors and generous benefactors can partner with us financially, including restricted donations. All scholarship donations are distributed locally, all capital campaigns are local, and we have a wide variety of ongoing initiatives at each campus that would benefit from financial support. If you are interested in supporting the national work of Trinity Schools, please contact your local executive director, and he or she will put you in touch with the president to discuss your interest in our broader work.